I WAIT.

If only the rain would cease to beat,
If only the winds would cease to blow,
If only the clouds would but retreat,
And the summer sun-shine glance and glow,
I should be perfectly happy I know.

All day and every day, I wait
For something or other to come and go
To make my pleasure a perfect state,
To make my heart a summer glow
Of sure delight that will never go.

But all day, and every day, I wait,
And the days run by, and the days run low,
And everything seems too soon or too late,
And I never find what I seek, you know,
Never get just what I want, you know.

There's always something or other amiss,
The tide is at ebb when I want it at flow,
A fleck and a flaw to mar the bliss
That might be easily perfect I know,
If I could but make things come and go!

I've waited now so long and so late,
That the hope I had, like the tide runs low,
And I begin to think that I shall wait
Forever and ever like this, you know,
For things to come, that always go.

And I begin to think that perhaps, perhaps,
When time is so swift and joy so low,
I'd better make most of the hours that elapse,
And the best of the days that come and go,
Or the years will be gone ere ever I know,

And I shall sit weary, old and sad,
Like a weary old woman I know,
And think of the days I might have been glad,
Of the pleasures I dropped and the things I let go,
For the things I never could find you know.

The Broken Boat.

'It is too bad,' said Alice Ford, with a quiver of her scarlet lower lip.

'It is what might be expected,' said Mrs. Ford, sitting serenely at the breakfast table, 'when a girl will flirt with two gentlemen at once.'

'But I haven't flirted,' said Alice, ready to cry.

'I don't know what else you can call it,' said Mrs. Ford. 'Will you have another cup of tea, Alice?'

'Tea!' flashed out the girl; 'as if one could drink tea when one's heart is breaking! Oh, aunt, if Mr. Errett were a gentleman he would release me from this galling engagement.'

'You promised him, my dear?' said Mrs. Ford.

'Yes; but I hadn't met Arthur Kelham then; and I have written to Mr. Errett, and implored him to release me from this hateful bond,' cried poor Alice. 'I have told him that since our engagement—an engagement that was your doing, aunt——'

'I know it,' said Mrs. Ford, 'and I am proud of it.'

'That since that engegement,' went on Alice, 'I have discovered that my heart is not my own; and he has written back that he sees no necessity for altering the original state of things, and that if it is agreeable to me—agreeable indeed!—the wedding may still take place on the sixth of October. Horrible, cold hearted, calculating old——'

'Good morning, ladies; I hope I see you well!'

And Alice's tirade was unexpectedly cut short by the apparition of Mr. Bartholomew Errett. She had scarcely uttered a disjointed word or two of greeting when the maid opened an opposite door and announced:

'Please, Miss Alice, Mr. Kelham.'

And Arthur Kelham came in, young, handsome and debonnair, as unlike his mature rival as is blooming May to ripened September.

Mr. Errett put up his eye glass at Arthur Kelham, and Arthur Kelham stared Mr. Errett full in the face with well-bred amazement.

'Sir,' said Mr. Errett, 'I am at a loss to imagine what brings you here!'

'Sir,' retorted Mr. Kelhan, 'I suppose I have as good right to visit my friends as you have to call on yours!'

'You mistake,' said Mr. Errett; 'I am engaged to Miss Ford.'

'Do you mean to say,' retorted Kelham, hotly, 'that you would marry the girl against her will? Why, you might as well be a Turkish slave-driver at once!'

'Sir!' gasped Bartholomew Errett, turning a livid pallor, 'I am at a loss to conceive what business all this is of yours!'

Alice stepped between them.

'You shall not quarrel about me,' said she, with a dignity that would scarcely have been expected from one so small and slight. 'Arthur, I have carved out my own destiny and must abide by it. Mr. Errett, I beg you to remember that you are in the presence of ladies!'

'Am I to stand here and see you insulted?' demanded Kelham, with flushed brow.

'I have promised to be his wife,' said Alice; 'and until he himself absolves me from my word, I have no power to assert my freedom.'

'Do you then bid me go?'

'Yes,' the girl answered, almost inaudibly.

And Arthur Kelham turned and left the field in triumphant possession of Mr. Bartholomew Errett.

'Mr. Errett!' * * *

'Eh!' said the middle-aged swimmer; 'is it you, Kelham? Boating, eh?'

'Yes. Do you think it's quite safe for you to be here, so far from land? You are not afraid of that shark, then?'

'Of the—what?' said Mr. Errett.

'Haven't you heard? There has been a shark along this shore since yesterday; and, by Jingo! I believe he is there now. Don't you see something that shines white through the spray?'

Mr. Errett reared himself up in the water like a new species of sea-serpent.

'Good Heaven!' said he, 'there is something like a shark there. Why didn't they tell me? Why did they allow me——'

'I wouldn't be nervous,' said Kelham, coolly. 'Perhaps he don't see you.'

See me! Why those fellows can scent human flesh a mile off! I should have been a dead man in ten minutes if you hadn't come along.'

And he began to paddle ingloriously toward the little boat in which Arthur Kelham was sitting.

'Hallo!' said Kelham, putting an oar's length between himself and the swimmer, 'what are you about?'

'I am going to get into your boat, to be sure.'

'Are you though,' said Kelham; 'there may be two opinions about that.'

'Eh!' said Errett.

'What should I take you back to land for?' demanded Kelman. 'If the shark eats you up, I'm all right with Alice.'

'Man alive!' gasped Mr. Errett, 'you wouldn't leave me to die a horrible death, would you?'

'As I remember,' coolly remarked Arthur Kelham, 'you hadn't much mercy on me.'

'That was different.'

'I don't see how,' with another stroke of his oars, just as Errett was about to clutch at the side of the boat. 'Don't hurry—now don't.'

'I say, Kelham, look here,' cried Errett, with a scared glance over his left shoulder towards the suspicious white object. 'Hold on, I say.'

'Well?' said Kelham.

'I—I ain't so very particular about the girl. Hold on.'

He was beginning to lose breath in the battle with the waves, and said:

'If you really insist——'

'Oh, I don't insist. I don't care to peril Mrs. Ford's fortune by getting Alice into disgrace with her. I must have a voluntary cession of all your rights or none.'

'It—it shall be voluntary,' cried Mr. Errett with chattering teeth. 'I will tell the old lady I've changed my mind; I will make any statement you wish; only save my life.'

'I have your word of honor?' said Kelham.

'My word of honor,' replied Errett.

'Jump in, then.'

And Bartholomew Errett scrambled, more dead than alive, into the other's boat and was pulled to the shore.

'I'll just leave you here on the beach till your man comes,' said Kelham, half laughing at Mr. Errett's doleful appearance. 'I see his boat now rounding the point. Good afternoon. I sincerely hope you will take no cold.'

When Philip Gaul pulled up on the shingly sand his employer hailed him with opprobrious epithets.

'You villain!' cried Errett; 'why didn't you tell me of the shark?'

'Of the what, master?' demanded old Gaul, scratching his grizzled head.

'Of the shark; you can see him now when the sun strikes the point. Good Heaven! to think of the peril I have run.'

'Lawk, master,' said old Gaul, his hard features relaxing into a grin; 'that ain't no shark. That's Boon's broken boat, stranded there on a bit of reef. I could show it to you plain if I only had my spy glass.'

Mr. Errett's lower jaw fell.

'Are you sure?' said he.

'Quite sure, master. I seen it as I come by this morning. Sharks indeed! There ain't never no sharks about here.'

Mr. Errett resumed his garments in silence, feeling that he had been out-generaled by his enterprising rival.

'But after all,' said he to himself, 'if the girl don't like me——Gaul, look here. How much do I owe you?—because I shall not need your boat any more.'

'Going away from here?' asked the astounded sailor.

'Yes,' was the reply.

And so Mr. Errett left the coast clear for Arthur Kelham, to Alice's infinite delight.

'Wasn't it good of him, dear?' said she to her lover.

'Very,' said Arthur

But he kept his own counsel about the shark and how he had out-generaled Bartholomew Errett.

An Old-Time Senator.

General George W. Jones of Iowa, left the United States Senate on March 4th, 1859. On the 4th of March, 1881, he was an honored guest of the Senate, entitled as an ex-senator to the privileges of the floor. All the members were new to him except one, Mr. Hamlin of Maine, and the next day even he was gone and a younger man was in his seat. General Jones is to-day the most historic and, perhaps, the most remarkable character in the west. He sat in the Senate with Clay and Webster and Calhoun, with Silas Wright, Benton, Crittenden and Jeff Davis, with Sumner, Seward, Chase and Douglas. In the early part of the century, when General Jackson was president, he sat in the House of Representatives with Henry A. Wise and John Quincy Adams. His district included all of Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa and Minnesota; it now has over thirty representatives in congress. He left the senate, not because of personal defeat, but because his party had gone out of power in Iowa. The intimate and trusted friend of Andrew Jackson, the partner of Daniel Webster, he remembers Jefferson. On terms of personal acquaintance with nearly all of our celebrated warriors and statesmen, he numbers among his friends and enemies the mighty red kings Black Hawk, Keokuk and Poweshiek. A soldier in the war of 1812, General Jones is a young man yet. He walks erect, without a cane, with a light and springy step, and claims none of the indulgences and immunities of old age.

Ragpicker's Town.

Although this strange locality in Paris, is more widely known than some others to which we may presently refer, it is yet so much out of the way as to make it worth while to describe its exact whereabouts. It lies, then, beyond the northern slope of the hill of Montmartre; it is bounded to the south by the Rue des Cloys and to the north by the Rue Marcadet, and is completely surrounded by a high stone wall. It covers a considerable tract of ground, and was used during the Commune as an artillery park. The entrance to it is through a large wooden door in the Rue Marcadet, opposite the cemetery of Montmartre. Before we go any farther, it will be well to warn any intending visitor that the inhabitants, although a very tolerant folk, cannot endure the sight of decent clothes, and that amongst many healthy symptons to be noted in them, the most prominent is a deadly abhorrence of the tall hat of civilization. To attempt to take them in, on the other hand, by any assumption of 'blouse' or of silken 'casquette' is absurd,' owever 'quaint and curious' your knowledge of Parisian slang may be; bnt they will be pleased by the attention, and when you come among them will comment pleasantly upon your good breeding and taste in adopting the outward habits of the country in which you happen to find yourself. Such, at least, was our experience. The coup d'œil when you find yourself within the entrance is a striking one. Immediately before you lies an open space with grass growing here and there between heaps of rubbish. In the centre is a sort of avenue of young trees and plants in every stage of decrepitude, leading up to the houses, or, 'to speak by the card,' boxes, in which the chiffonniers live. These are about six feet square, and the roofs are kept in their places by heavy stones, such as one sees on the cottages in exposed situations in other places. The roofs are for the most part of wood, whereas the walls are composed of all things which are generally considered unfit to build with, so that the appearance of a Rue Marcadet chiffonnier in his house may be best likened to that of a caddis in his strangely constructed abode. On the occasion of our visit a high wind had been blowing, and more than one member of the community was busy rebuilding his house, which had been blown down in the night. On all sides a hustling activity prevailed, men and women busily sorting the contents of their baskets, while numbers of dogs of an unknown breed barked lustily at our approach. Strangers are, indeed, few and far between in the chiffonniers' town, for no man from the outer world ever comes to sell them anything, a street of shops kept by their concitoyens existing, not indeed within their own walls, but in another enclosure close by. Here dwell bootmakers, a butcher (a great expert at making a cat found dead into a toothsome dish), tailors and lampmakers, who provide the triangular lanterns with which the members of the 'profession' go their rounds at night in search of prey. Go through that strange little street, of which the houses come up to your shoulders, at what hour of the night you will, you will still see the bootmakers at work on the cast off shoes which their customers have picked up in the Paris gutters.

Charlotte Cushman.

Perhaps the last actress that anyone would suppose ever experienced that tender passion, much less suffered from the pangs of unrequited love, was Charlotte Cushman; and yet twice in her life she was ready to sacrifice everything for the man of her heart. Miss Cushman received a common school education in Boston. Her desk-mate was the daughter of an actor, which led to frequent conversations upon theatrical matters, and took an interest in them to such an extent that Miss Cushman determined as a child that, should fate ever compel her to adopt a public life, the stage would be her preference. She had barely reached the age of sixteen before she was deeply enamored of a young gentleman who had his way to make in the world, and a speedy marriage being thereby prevented, she had little thought of hope but to do away with the obstacles which separated them. Circumstances soon compelled her to cast about for some means of self-support, her mother being a widow with seven children to provide for. Miss Cushman had a pretty, sympathetic, singing voice, of no great power, but much sweetness.

Mrs. Wood was an English ballad-singer, among the first of that class to make a great sensation in this country, and during an engagement in Boston Miss Cushman managed to be introduced to her, and finally under Mrs. Wood's auspices, she made her appearance in the concert room, being simply announced as 'a young lady.' Her success was sufficiently pronounced to determine her to continue in that mode of life, or at least until her betrothed should have become able to marry her; but he took great umbrage at what he stigmatized 'an unwomanly proceeding,' and declared she had disgraced him. Hot words followed on her side, and after much altercation and mutual pain the engagement was free to follow out her destiny as a great artist. She went her way, and he went his. After much hard struggling it led him into the establishment of a store—a sort of trimming store combined with ready-made clothing for ladies and children—in which he prospered. He is now one of the foremost merchants of the kind in Boston. Long years elapsed before the two met again. Charlotte was famous, and he affluent and influential. They met as strangers meet, were introduced, and ever afterward maintained amicable but not amatory relations, for he had married in the meantime.

A few years ago I was in Boston and dropped into his store to make some purchases. It happened that Miss Cushman preceded me a few steps. As soon as the floor-walker caught sight of her he hurried off and returned with the proprietor, a hale ruddy-faced, white-haired gentleman, of quiet and dignified bearing.

They took rather than shook hands, he holding hers for a moment, and then side by side they walked to the back of the store. To see those two calm, self-contained, old silver-haired people, one would have little suspected the heartrending romance which hung over their youth. It is all very fine to despise money, but the lack of it frequently changes the destinies of entire lives. Had Miss Cushman's lover been only sufficiently well off to have married her at the blooming of their love, in all probability the stage would have never known her brilliant genius.

She once remarked to a friend who was cognizant of the circumstances: 'When I see him now, rich and respected, but not great, and think what a good husband he had made, I sigh for what I have lost and rejoice for what I have gained. Nevertheless, fame and fortune only cannot compensate a woman for the life-long absence of a husband's affection, children's love, and the peace and happiness of private life. When I returned from New Orleans with my voice all gone and in despair, if he had come forward then and offered me a home, I would gladly have accepted it, and would have lived my life untroubled by ambitious dreams, unsuspecting the divine afflatus within me. I have had a thousand times over in my hand more than the money which would have secured my happiness when a girl, and always think for what a paltry sum my whole domestic happiness was sacrificed.'

After Miss Cushman had achieved fame in England, she made a tour to this country. She was then a woman of middle age, with a remarkably ugly face, but with a tall and well-modeled frame. She played at the National theatre, Cincinnati. Conrad B. Clarke was the leading man, many years her junior. He had been brought up as a gentleman, being the son of a Quaker in Philadelphia. He soon evinced a liking for the stage, and nothing could keep him from it. As for theatrical talent, he had not mistaken his vocation. Miss Cushman was struck with his polish and wit, his talent and cultured tone. From conversation on acting in the theatre, Clarke soon began to call at the hotel to receive particular instructions in the parts he was to play with her, then he escorted her home from the theatres at nights, and it was plainly to be seen she looked with marked favor upon the young actor. One evening she was at the wing, ready to go on as Meg Merriles, I playing the boy in 'Guy Mannering.' I was standing by her side, and Mr. Clarke was a few steps off, flirting desperately with a lovely young actress, who had been christened 'the poodle dog' from the way she dressed her hair, which was just as they wear it now-a-days, but then thought a wild, crazy style. The star had been giving me a few stage directions, and, impelled by I know not what impulse, I suddenly asked:

'What, of all things in the world, Miss Cushman, would you rather be?

She replied as impulsively, glancing at Clarke and sighing:

'I would rather be a pretty woman than anything else in this wide world,' and on the stage she rushed to shriek through Meg Merrilies. After this he assumed a bolder front, flirted no more about the scenes, and became obsequiously attentive to her. It became the recognized fact that he was the great star's protege, and next it transpired that she had engaged him to go to England with her. This was a happy period for them both. Frankness being one of her chief characteristics, she made no secret of her admiration of his talents and liking for him personally, and of her intention toward his interests so far as lay within her power. Whether she loved him as she loved another in her girlhood days is difficult to determine, but her manners became more gentle and womanlike, she was less imperious with her underlings, and spared a great deal of time teaching him his parts. His feelings were easier probed; Conrad Clarke did not love Charlotte Cushman. His nature was too selfish to permit him to feel so pure and disinterested a passion as love in its highest sense. Matters had thus stood for some months.

One evening Miss Cushman was going to the theatre alone, when a weak, haggard-looking woman approached her with a baby in her arms. She was a small, red-haired, fragile creature. Laying her hand on Miss Cushman's arm, she said:

'Miss Cushman, I think a woman of your genius and position might have plenty of admirers without taking up with the husband of a poor woman like me.'

The tragedienne paused in blank amazement.

'Are you talking to me?' she asked.

'I am.'

'And you say I have taken your husband from you?'

'Yes—you—Charlotte Cushman.'

'I don't know you; may I ask the name of this precious husband of yours?'

'Conrad Clarke,' was the reply.

The great actress hurried away. She had received a blow, but she met it with a brave front, as she had many others in her not altogether smooth path in life. All smiles, bows, and honeyed words Clarke greeted her that night. She gave a death blow to all his hopes, not tenderly, as many a woman so situated might have done, but with characteristic decision. On learning from his wife what she had done, he became furious at what he declared to be a malicious scheme to ruin him, and, leaving her, swore never to live with her again. Annie Clarke easily obtained a divorce from him, and shortly after married an actor, named Forest, of Cleveland. By a strange concatenation of circumstances, Clark's child was adopted and most tenderly reared by one of our brightest wits, the only one of his peculiarly caustic kind left, a man who wields a powerful weapon in his pen—who has two parties for and against him—one that hates and fears him, the other that loves and praises him.

Afghan Soldiers.

The relations between the officers and men remind one of those existing in the Turkish army. If an Afghan officer drinks tea, a number of soldiers are sure to sit around him. If he smokes a kaliana, all the soldiers gather near him and await their turn; the kaliana, having gone the round of the privates, returns again to the officer. If a soldier smokes a pipe, the officer asks him to let him have a draw at it. Should a soldier take from the folds of his dress a tobacco pouch, in order to put a plug of tobacco under his tongue, the officer inserts his finger and thumb into the pouch also, and takes a pinch of tobacco. On the other hand, should the officer take out his own pouch, the soldier helps himself in a similar manner to his tobacco. I did not observe that the mutual freedom of manner had any detrimental effect on the descipline of the troops. The men obeyed the commands of their officers with docility, and never displayed insubordination when sentenced to be thrashed. Indeed, it is exceedingly rare that officers employ the lash. During the whole of my sojourn in Afghanistan, I only saw the punishment inflicted twice; on both occasions on men who had stolen hay from my horses.

The Flowery Island.

Right out of the sea, 450 miles from the Florida coast, rises a huge rock, twenty-two miles long by seven wide. It is the smallest of the Bahama Islands and is called New Providence. It nestles in a wilderness of flowers, plants and fruits. There is not a tree, shrub or flower that thrives in any warm climate that does not grow luxuriantly there. It is a rock upon which these beauties grow and blossom, and over which a never-ending summer breeze blows the seeds of health by tempering the warmth of a tropical sun until it strikes a happy medium where all season is summer and mankind basks in an atmosphere practically invariable twelve months in the year, and trees, shrubs and flowers thrive in chaotic profusion all the year round.

It is a calcareous rock of coral, soft and pliable to the mechanic's hand, filled with shells and sand, and spit upon by the ocean until cemented with its brine. The surface in places rots, forms a thin soil, and in this, and wherever a crack or crevice is found, the gayest flowers bloom. To describe its inhabitants would be to parade before you a mass of colored men, women and children, cheaply but neatly dressed, barefooted and bonnetless, but happy, polite. Out of a population of 15,000 more than 12,000 are negroes, and unusually intelligent. Shining out from this darkness is now and then a native white face, intelligent and healthy, and at this season numbers of foreigh faces, which look as if in search of health. The houses are as neat as the people, and all of them are smothered in flowers and shrubbery. In almost every yard, as well as growing wild, are cocoanuts, oranges, guaves, soladillos, mangoes and all sorts of fruit hang in all stages—bud, blossom, half grown and the matured fruit. The drives over the town and through the island are superb, smooth as a floor and of solid rock, lined on either side with tangled sweeping vines, stunted trees and flowering plants. The oleander towers its high head among the more pretentious tropical plants, while our own modest morning glory, so dear to our childhood, peeps out from behind the leaves with the dew resting upon its purple lips to be kissed away by the morning sun. No tongue can tell or pen write the beauties, either of land or sea, which are everywhere visible. Fruits are the principle staples, and upon these the natives live to very great extent. All tropical varieties grow in abundance, and are remarkably rich and nutritious. Every variety of fish is taken and enters very largely into the domestic economy of the natives. The chief industry of the island is sponge gathering.

Bismarck.

His name vas Bismarck, mit only vone eye, on accoundt of a old plack cat, vot pelongs to a serfant Irish gals mit red-haired hair. Also he has only dree legs, on accoundt of mocolotif engines mitout any bull-ketcher. He vas a dog, Bismarck vas. He vas paldt-headed all ofer himself, in gonsequense of red hot vater, on accoundt of fightin' mit a cat. On vone endt of himself vas skituated his head—und his tail vas py de oder endt. He only carries about vone-half of his tail mit him, on occoundt of a circular saw-mill. He looks a goodt teal more older as he is already, but he ain't quite as oldt as dot until de next Christmas.

De vay dot you can know him is, if you calls him "Shack," he von't say notings, but he makes answers to de name "Bismarck," by saying "Pow vow vow?"—und, in de meantime, vagging half of his tail—dot oder nafs vas cut off, so he can't, of course, shake it. Also, if you t'row stones on top of him, he vill run like de tuefel, and holler "Ky yi! ky yi!" Dot's de vay you can told my dog.

He looks like a cross between a bull-foundtlandt und a cat mit nine tails—but he ain't. He got not efen vone whole tail, und he ain't cross not a bit.

Anoder vay you could told if it vas my Bismarck is dot he vas almost a dwin. He vould be half of a bair of dwins dot time, only dere vas dree of them—a bair of dwins und a half. I pelieve dey calls dot a triplet.

Also he got scars on de top of his side, vhere he scratched himself mit a Thomas cat—but dot Thomas cat nefer recovered himself.

You can also tell Bismarck on accoundt of his vonderful inshtinct. He can out inshtinct any dog vot you nefer saw in my life. For inshtance, if you pat him on top of his head mit my hand, he knows right avay dot you like him, but if you pat him on the head mit a pavement shtones or de shtick of a proom, he vill shuspect right off dot you care not fery much about him.

Fashionable Calls.

(Callers seated in the parlors of an up town mansion.)

'I've heard she gave three hundred dollars for that group, I'd just as soon have a chromo, wouldn't you?'

'H-u-sh!'

'And just look at that center table—looks like a fancy fair for all the world; one would think—'

'H-u-s-h, she's coming.'

(Enter lady of the house.)

'Oh, you dear darling creatures! What an age since I've seen you. Where have you been? Enjoying the holidays, no doubt. I'm so glad to see you both.'

(Together.) 'And we are so glad to see you! how perfectly sweet you do look! What have you been doing to yourself? Oh, it's that lovely new dress! so becoming! but then you look well in everything!'

'Oh! oh! Who's got a new seal skin cloak? Dear Mrs. Smith, I just envy you; it's a be-a-utiful thing!'

Mrs. Smith—'Well, it ought to be James gave four hundred and twenty-five dollars for it.'

'Yes, but that's nothing for Col. Smith, you know! How is he? I do admire the Colonel so much! But then he never looks at any one but you.'

'Oh! yes! make me believe that! He's a regular old flirt! but I forgive him for everything since he's got me this cloak. Well, we really must go; ever so many more calls to make. Now, return this soon, there's a darling. By-by sweetness.'

(Lady of the house to next caller.)

'Yes, that Mrs. Col. Smith and her sister—what a dowdy that sister is—did call here, and, do you believe, she had the impudence to tell me—me—that her husband gave four hundred and twenty-five dollars for that shabby old seal skin, as if I didn't know exactly what it was worth! He'd much better pay his debts,' etc., etc., adinfinitum.

Bridal Bills.

For a quiet wedding at home there are, first, the invitations, which involve, as a rule, two card-plates and a note-sheet printed on the finest of heavy white paper. Monograms and special designs have been nearly discarded, and the fashionable text is a plain, simple, legible script, beautifully engraved. The cost depends upon the number of letters, but, on the average, for 100 invitations, the cost will be $20, with an additional $5 for each additional 100, unless the order exceeds 500, when a moderate discount is given. For 500 guests the stationer sends in his bill for from $40 to $60. The rage at present seems to be for floral decorations; and although nature scatters her blossoms and verdure with a generous hand, and never sends in a bill, the florist is by no means so liberal. A plain unostentatious display of smilax and flowers may be procured for fifty dollars, and that is about the lowest figure for which a fashionable florist would think of sending his bill. Exotics, oriental palms, and ferns are not included in such a decoration; nor are bridal bells, and hearts, and canopies, beneath which the happy pair receive the congratulations of their friends. Single pieces of their description—and very ungraceful ones at that though woven of rare exotics—often cost from $75 to $150 and where a number are required, the bill soon crawls up to a good sized figure. Good taste and fertility of suggestion can, however, accomplish wonderful results with $100, particularly where elegance is preferred to a dumb show of magnificent profusion.

Then comes the collation—say for 150 guests—served quietly in the dining-room. It is a moot point whether it pays to employ a caterer and commit the whole item of collation, wines, and attendance to his hands, or to undertake the work one's self, with the training of servants, and the illimitable probabilities of broken porcelain and mislaid silver. Those who have had most experience in wedding and dinner parties aver, as a rule, that it costs less money and gives better satisfaction, independent of personal trouble and the vexation arising from the blunders of hired attendants, to take the former coarse. For a simple collation for 150 guests, about the lowest figures given by caterers are $2 per capita, and from that to $12, which was regarded as embracing all the requirements that could possibly be asked.

For a wedding breakfast, served in a very quiet way, $1.50 per capita represents the lowest limit of caterers' prices; and this is probably less than it would cost the bride's father to buy the materials and make provision for their preparation and service. It is not unusual this winter however; on very quiet occasions, to be content with a service of cake and wine only. Wedding cake for one hundred persons, done up in pretty boxes, stamped with monegrams, is furnished at from $30 to $50, according to the style of the box; for one of these dainty little trifles, with painting by hand on the lid, all satin and gilding, may be rendered as expensive as a casket of gold, or, in the extreme of simplicity, furnished for next to nothing.

Of course, after all, the main item of expense is the bridal trousseau. The attire for the ceremony, the white satin, brocaded or not, with bridal veil, orange blossoms, and toilet accessories, may—exclusive of laces and jewels—be procured for $500. In fact, one can readily spend from $1,000 upwards in order to give one daughter in marriage in harmony with the ritual of top society.

"K'rect-Farewell."

No cat could have walked into the Central Station, Detroit, more softly than did a long-waisted, low-voiced stranger about 40 years old, whose hands were encased in badly worn cotton gloves, hat brushed clear down below the nap, boots wanting new heels, and dress coat showing a cotton edge all around. He was neither a great general, statesman nor orator. He simply desired to make a few inquiries, and he softly said:

'My arrangements are such that I shall be in Detroit until after Washington's birthday. I am a great admirer of the lamented gentleman, and I always make it a point to celebrate his birthday.'

'Which is patriotic and all right,' replied the captain of police.

'I wanted to ask what latitude the police would allow me on such an occasion?' continued the man. 'I shall certainly get drunk; but will I be permitted to tear down stoves, smash up bars, break windows and kick in doors?'

'Certainly not. The first move you make in that direction will result in your being run in.'

'Would, eh? Well, I simply inquired for information. I suppose it would be doing the lamented gentleman full honor if I simply got drunk?'

'I think so.'

'Very well, I don't want to seem captious in the matter, nor do I care to get into any trouble. I think I will get drunk early in the morning.'

'Yes.'

'And wave the American flag from the window of my boarding house—wave it gently.'

'Yes.'

'And make a speech to my landlady on the goodness and greatness of the lamented gentleman—make it very gently and quietly, without any cheers or applause.'

'Yes, that would do.'

'And then go down into the back yard and hurrah about three times—not yell like a Pawnee Injun, but softly and quietly hurrah for George Washington, the father of his country.'

'Well, don't disturb anyone.'

'No, of course not. After hurrahing I will return to my room, take another drink read the Declaration of Independence, and make a speech to myself—not a ranting, blatant oratorical effort, but a soft and mild sort of peroration, ending up with the song entitled, 'My Country, 'tis of Thee,' and so forth.'

'Yes, that's good.'

'Then I'll take another drink and go to bed and lie there during the remainder of the day, unless the landlady insists on another speech, and I don't think she will. Now, then, are my terms perfectly satisfactory?'

'Yes.'

'Very well, then—adieu. A mild, gentle drink—subdued oratory—gentle waving—repressed hurrahing—harp-like peroration, and you are satisfied, I am satisfied, and the lamented gentleman has got to be satisfied or provide his own brass bands. Perfectly k'rect—farewell!'

PROTHONOTARY.

We are authorized to announce that J. C. HARPER, is a candidate for the office of Prothonotary, subject to Democratic rules.

COMMISSIONER.

We are authorized to announce that JOHN HOY, Jr., of Marion township, is a candidate for the office of County Commissioner, subject to Democratic rules.

Conkling Resigns.

On Monday Senators Conkling and Platt created a profound sensation in the senate by resigning their seats in that body. What it all means is a subject of conjecture. While Conkling's resignation is generally considered ridiculous, that of Mr. Platt is simply contemptible. After the first spell of amazement shall have subsided the country will give a sigh of relief over the fact that the proud and insolent dictator of the senate has chosen to commit political suicide rather than wait to be crushed to, powder by the Garfield administration. Farewell Conkling—The country congratulates you on the best effort of your life.

The decision of the Supreme Court deny ing the protection of the statute of limitation to persons charged with election frauds or other offenses against the purity of the ballot, will startle many old ballot-thieves of this city who have openly boasted of their election crimes after they supposed them protected by the statute of 1839. Such crimes are now held by the Supreme Court to be common law offenses, and therefore not barred by the limitation of one year named in the general election law.—Philadelphia Times.

SOUND DOCTRINE.

The speaking on the confirmation of Judge Robertson as Collector of the Port of New York, Senator Vorhees recently gave utterance to the following sound words He places the recent invention of "senatorial courtesy" subordinate to the public good and it is to be hoped that other Democratic senators will follow the good example of Mr. Voorhees:

The New York custom house is as national in its proper functions as one of the departments of the government, and the collector of customs at New York is as much a national official as a member of the cabinet. A great commercial port, collecting revenue from seven tenths, perhaps, of all the commerce of the American people cannot be regarded as a mere appendage to the local politics of a single state. The appointment of the collector of such a port cannot be claimed as a local perquisite for a senator or member of congress, like the appointment of a postmaster. The people of Ohio, Indiana and other great western states, are as much interested in the administration of the legitmate business of the New York custom house as the people of New York themselves. While I regret that the appointment of Judge Robertson is not acceptable to the senators from New York, yet, believing him a capable and an honest man, and recognizing the right of the president to make the selection, I feel it my duty to vote for his confirmation.

There is a fresh trouble ahead for our amiable President. A dark cloud is approaching to disturb his dreams. The colored brethren have just made the shocking discovery that they don't have their "rights"—that is that they must do the voting while their white brethren take all the offices. Without their votes the Republican party would be in a minority of at least one million. They argue—and very logically too—that a goodly number of the public offices belong rightfully to them. They sent a depudation to wait upon Garfield and ask him what he is going to do about. Garfield advised them to hold state conventions and by concerted action give form and shape to their wishes. They took the President at his word. In Maryland they already had their convention and decided that they must have some of the Federal offices. Anotner convention will soon be held in North Carolina with the same result. The administration may be horrified at the turn affairs are taking, but can not much longer dodge a question which the party so long evaded. Let them face the music and give the colored man his "rights." The cabinet will likely soon be re-constructed, and Garfield will have a fine chance to do the square thing by the darkey. He might even now withdraw the disreputable nomination of Stanley Matthews and name some colored man for Supreme Judge. It seems that they can no longer be happy without some good fat offices and we hope that our model President will will see to it that justice is done to them.

How the Star route plunder thrived under Brady may be udderstood by the following five routes which were raised from $166,600.25 to $744,135.15 when the entire postal receipts to the government from them was $63,718.57. The first route is in Texas, the second in New Mexico, the third in Dakota and Montana, the fourth in Wyoming and the fifth in Arizona. The following table exhibits the original bids the increase made by Brady and the gross postal receipts.

	Original Pay.	Increased Pay.	Receipts.
No. 31,454	$134,000.00	$229,000.00	$38,194.34
No. 32,024	6,330.00	150,392.03	5,640.76
No. 35,051	2,350 00	70,000.00	6,545.77
No. 37,110	10,597.25	88,768.12	2,493.52
No. 40,101	13,313.00	135,975.00	10,844.18
Total	$166,590.25	$744,135.15	$63,718.57

The nomination of Stanley Matthews for Judge of the Supreme Court of the United States, by President Hayes was considered a blunder but little short of a crime. But Garfield, in full view of a public sentiment almost unanimous against the wily Matthews, re nominated him for the same position. The Senate judiciary committee report adversely upon the discreditable nomination and there is good ground to hope that it will not be confirmed. He cannot be unless some Democratic Senators stultify themselves by voting for him.

SENATOR MAHONE of Virginia, who weighs ninety-two pounds, is mentioned by Mary Clemmer as being chiefly nerve, bone, brains and beard, and looking like a Bluebeard lilliputian. Mary might have added that he is about the smallest piece of flesh that ever sat as a member of the first deliberative body of the world.

ACCORDING to Vice President Arthur the notorious "Star route" man, Dorsey, saved Indiana for Garfield by a liberal application of the monies swindled from government by fraudulent mail contracts. But now Garfield refuses to save Dorsey from the results of the investigation of the wicked Star route business. Hayes was much more grateful for favors in that line and took better care of those who made him President. Wells and Anderson, the Louisiana Return Board perjurers, their aiders and abettors, were all provided with good, fat offices.

Last Friday the senate confirmed the nomination of Stanley Matthews as Judge of the U. S. Supreme Court. A session of five hours was consumed over the matter and Matthews had only one vote majority—22 to 21. This is one of the most disreputable appointments ever made by a President and the confirmation as simply a disgrace to the senate. Matthews is an Ohio man, of course, a political jobber and friend of big corporations. He was the attorney of Jay Gould and the Pacific Rail Roads, and did his best to cheat the government out of his just dues under the Thurman law. His instints, feelings and associations are all on the side of our monster monopolies and against the interests of the people. And this is the stuff our supreme judges are made of in these latter days.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, D. C., May 14, '81.

It is believed the Senate will adjourn next week. The President's uncontested nominations have been confirmed, and because of democratic afflictions and other reasons he will not enter on such a general re-organization of the departments as will make an extended session necessary. The nomination of Robertson will no doubt be acted on. He will be confirmed. Senator Conkling concedes this. All that republican Senators are looking for now is the easiest way in which they can undo the work of that caucus at which they agreed not to act on that or any other nomination objected to by a Senator. They will not find it easy, but they will get out of the scrape in some way. The patronage of an administration in its first year is enough to make republican Senators do anything. The taking up of Robertson's case by the Republican Senators would be considered if the transaction were one in business, highly dishonorable; but it will be taken up. The people will have the matter to think over for some time before their opportunity occurs for a direct trial of strength between the administration and the Senate. That the people will endorse the President's bulldozing, or the Senators surrender is not to be believed. That they will feel and exhibit disgust at both is certain.

I am very glad to-day that there appears now to be no doubt about the rejection of William E. Chandler as Solicitor General. If the President persists in leaving his name before the Senate for action. The confirmation of Matthews during the week was secured by Democratic votes, but there is no Democratic support for Chandler and there is Republican opposition. The bulk of redeemable five per cent. bonds have been "called" by Secretary Windom the holders having the option of accepting a new bond at three and a half per cent, to run during the pleasure of the government.

There is no doubt but a very large proportion of the bonds will be continued, but a few, the holders of which have failed to hear of the Secretary's offer; and a few which are mislaid or so tied up by court proceedings that the offer cannot be accepted in time. The fact that the "extended" bearing three and one halt per cent. interest and issued without authority of Law command a premium, is held to be conclusive evidence that a three per cent. bond duly authorized could be sold at par. Congress will unquestionably authorize such a bond at its next session unless there shall be serious changes in the financial condition of the country.

Mrs. Garfield, the President's wife is not out of danger, though it is believed she is better than at any time during the past week. Her physicians, who by the way are homeopathists—now say that she has typhoid fever. She will as soon as she has sufficiently recovered, return to Mentor for the summer.

THE NEW VICTOR.

SIMPLICITY SIMPLIFIED!

Improvements September, 1876.

Notwithstanding the VICTOR has long been the peer of any Sewing Machine in the market—a fact supported by a host of volunteer witnesses—we now confidently claim for it greater simplicity, a wonderful reduction of friction and a rare combination of desirable qualities. Its shuttle is a beautiful specimen of mechanism, and takes rank with the highest achievements of inventive genius. Note.—We do not lease or consign Machines, therefore, have no old ones to patch up and re-varnish for our customers.

We Sell New Machines Every Time.

Send for Illustrated Circular and prices. Liberal terms to the trade. Don't buy until you have seen the

DEININGER & BUMILLER,
Editors and Proprietors.

Local Department.

—Rumor has it that Spring Mills will have a grand decoration.

—P. P. Leitzell and Harvey Confer have built nice, good fences along their fronts.

—A. O. Deininger has recently been appointed U. S. Storekeeper and Gauger, vice, Henry Whitmer, resigned.

—Will Millheim have a Decoration Day? Don't know—can't tell—hav'nt heard.

—Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer is a universal favorite for restoring gray hair to its original color, and making hair grow out thick.

—It affords a real pleasure even only to see the large and splendid stock of clothing at the Philadelphia Branch Store, Bellefonte, Pa. Now just try it for your own satisfaction.

—If you want an extra fine article in the line of tooth powder—and every body should use such an article—Dr. John F. Harter is the man to supply you. We have tried it and know wherof we speak. tf —Candidates are beginning to call around—to introduce themselves—to shake hands—to see their friends and make more friends. All right, gentlemen, only let everything be done fairly and squarely.

—THE EXCELSIOR DYE WORKS at Lewisburg turns out first class work. Shawls, dresses and men's garments will be colored and pressed in best style. Mr. Jacob Wolf is agent for Centre county. Goods left at the Journal office will be attended to. Satisfaction guaranteed. tf

—WEATHER cool and rainy this week, no doubt to square the account of heat that ran up so tremendously last week—and to bring men to their senses about buying one of Lewin's fine cheap over coats, lots of which are still on hand at the Popular Philadelphia Branch Store, Bellefonte, Pa. 2t

RE-ARRANGED.—Our readers will find the advertisement of Bauland & Newman re-arranged, re-set and reprinted. Read and re-read it by all means. The enterprising merchants have something new and interesting to tell you this week. Their immense business requires them to change their advertisement every two weeks, and even then they are not able to "Tell it All." Go and see the big store for yourself.

—No matter where you go you can not find a more complete store in all its appointments, outside of our large cities, than the Mammoth Bee Hive of Lock Haven, Mr. J. J. Everett, proprietor. Whether you look at the full assortment in every line of dry goods, the absolutely low and uniform prices or the kind treatment one gets by the gentlemanly boss and his corps of obliging salesmen, you will always leave the Bee Hive with feelings of highest satisfaction. Read Mr. Everett's large advertisement in another column and then go and try it, if you never did before. If you have made purchases there once you will go again and again.

INCREDIBLE BUT TRUE.—The large and splendid stock of new goods just recived at MUSSER & SMITH'S HARDWARE STORE, in Millheim, as well as the remarkable low prices at which they sell them, is a surprise to everybody. Among their newly arrived goods we call your special attention to the fine patterns of Table and Floor Oilcloths, Large variety of Hanging Lamps, New Styles of Wall Paper, Picture Frames, &c. Call there and see for yourself.

Woodward, May 16, '81.

This morning Minerva, a little daughter of Henry Reinhart, Esq., residing near this place, went to feed some young chicks, which were in a coop, in an orchard near the house. The coop had a trap door at the side which was kept open by a prop, to let the old hen and her family free ingress at pleasure. In coming to the coop Minerva found the trap door closed, and instead of finding the hen and chicks in it as usual, she found that a monster bird of some kind had caged itself. The monster blowed fearfully at Minerva, putting her in a terrible fright. She came running to the house and told the story, and it was found to be a very large owl that had crept into the coop and somehow moved the prop in doing so. The hen with eight chicks had escaped. Three dead chicks were in the coop, which the owl seems to have tramped to death. Mr. C. L. Reinhart shot the monster in his prison. It measured four feet seven inches from tip to tip of wings. **

Various Causes—

Advancing years, care, sickness, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition—all operate to turn the hair gray, and either of them inclines it to shed prematurely. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR will restore faded or gray, light or red hair to a rich brown or deep black, as may be desired. It softens and cleanses the scalp, giving it healthy action. It removes and cures dandruff and humors. By its use falling hair is checked, and a new growth will be produced in all cases where the follicles are not destroyed or the glands decayed. Its effects are beautifully shown on brashy, weak, or sickly hair, on which a few applications will produce a gloss and freshness of youth. Harmless and sure in its operation, it is incomparable as a dressing, and is especially valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts. It contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil a color white cambric; yet it lasts long on the hair, and keeps it fresh and vigorous.

NEWS FROM BRUSH.

Quis is still about, but has been rather inactive of late. Of course the Editor is satisfied and will freely pardon.

Our thermometer did nothing but go up last week. Whew! but it was hot.

No services in any of our churches last Sunday—a rare occurrence.

Decoration Day will soon be here and still no preparations are made for its proper observance. I consider Madisonburg the nucleus in the matter.

Messrs. Hall & Carlin are doing quite a lively business in furniture.

We will have plenty of apples and cherries if appearances do not deceive. In fact all nature is blooming.

Rev. W. R. Wieand's vacation has been extended to May 1st. Hope the Rev. gentleman will be fully restored to health by that time.

QUIS?

SPRING MILLS ITEMS.

Millheim, Lodge, I. O. O. F. and the celebrated cornet band of that place, are expected to be here on Decoration Day. Our Sunday Schools will also participate. A grand time is expected.

George C. Breon sold his farm adjoining town to Daniel P. Heckman, for $2200. Cheap at that, Daniel.

Last Friday morning as Mr. Mayse, a traveling agent from Philadelphia had his team tied in front of Grenoble's store, Mr. Royer had a team tied at Krumrine's ware house, just over the way. The approaching train frightened Mr. Royer's horses, they broke loose and ran in Mr. Mayse' buggy, demolishing the two hind wheels into atoms. Mr. Royer's wagon was somewhat damaged but none of the horses were seriously hurt.

A committee of ministers appointed at the recent session of the West Susquehanna Classis, at Selinsgrove, to consider the matter of building a Reformed church here, had a session in Grenoble's Hall, the other day. The prospects for success appear very favorable. Let the good work go on.

Geo. M. Leitzell is just now the youngest auctioneer out, and his first effort was a grand success.

Vegetation looks fine here, and all nature is dressed in her lovely garb of beautiful green.

UNCLE TOM.

News Miscellany.

Found Hanging to a Fence.

PITTSBURG, May 9.—Karl Mink was found hanging by the neck to a fence on the South Side this morning, stiff and rigid in death. His feet were resting on the ground, and his position showed that in order to strangle himself he had lifted his feet from the earth in order that his full weight could rest on the handkerchief that held him to the fence. The man was well-dressed, bore an intelligent countenance, and had a well-filled purse and was sober when last seen near the place of his death. He is supposed to have come from Mansfield.

Killed by Lightning.

MEMPHIS, May 9.—Yesterday afternoon, while children were playing under a tree near Winona, Miss., lightning struck the tree and instantly killed Nannie and Willie Hamer, nine and seven years, and Mary Hightower, aged six.

The Russian Czarina is said to be in terror for her children, and to suspect her maids of honor of complicity with the Nihilists. The Czar, it is said, has had a narrow escape of being blown up by means of explosive tubes hidden in the wax candles which are burned at his desk.

The "Speculative" Insurance Condemned.

Special Correspondence to THE TIMES.

MIFFLINBURG, May 6.—West Susquehanna Classis is a part of the Eastern Synod of the Reformed Church in the United States, and covers Snyder, Union and Centre counties, in Pennsylvania. At a late meeting of this body in Selinsgrove, Pa., the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, Almost the whole territory of West Susquehanna Classis is covered by what is commonly known as "speculative" life insurance.

RESOLVED, That we regard this business as fraudulent and wrong in principle and as very demoralizing in its effects.

RESOLVED, That we hereby earnestly exhort all our people to discourage and shun this business as a great public evil, hurtful to the Church and to the State as well as to the individual.

RESOLVED, That our pastors try to secure the early publication of this action in the various county papers which circulate among their people.

Pennsylvania produces about fifty per cent. of all the iron in the United States.

The wheat fields of western Pennsylvania never looked more promising than they do at present.

Round Top mountain, near Gettysburg, is to have an observatory sixty feet high.

HENRY SHAW, a Blair county man, took part in a game at a circus in Hollidaysburg, and lost $500 by the operation.

A gray eagle measuring seven feet across the wings was recently wounded and captured by William Finley, of Westmoreland county.

It is expected that 2,000,000 tons of coal will be produced yearly in the newly opened bituminous region of Centre county.

ASSEMBLYMAN GEORGE H. WILLIAMS, the only colored man in the Ohio Legislature, has fallen heir to $50,000 and will retire from business and politics and devote himself to a history that he is writing.

A wood pulp paper mill has been put in operation at Lock Haven which utilizes the slabs and edgings of the lumber mills. A heavy paper is manufactured, suitable for flour sacks, which is turned out at the rate of a car load a day.

Lizzie Devene, with the Barnum-London Circus, while performing the catapult act at Wilkesbarre on Tuesday evening fell upon the netting and struck her chin upon her knee, causing concussion of the spine. She has lost all power of motion and sensation of the lower limbs. Her recovery is doubtful.

Convicted of a Brutal Crime.

WILMINGTON, Del., May 12.—The trial of William C. Guthrie for attempted rape was concluded this afternoon. A verdict of guilty was rendered, but sentence was deferred. The statute prescribes a penalty of thirty lashes, the pilolry, a fine and imprisonment not exceeding ten years. Guthrie is about forty-five. His victim, Annie Bell Davidson, was eight and a half years old at the time. Both are white.

Arrested for Brute Outrage.

LEBANON, Pa., May 12—Charles Woomer, a married man, residing in the village of Myerstown, this county, was arrested at that place last night on a warrant issued by Squire Fasig, charging him with having committed rape on the fourteen-year-old daughter of John Howard, a resident of the same village. Woomer was brought to this place and lodged in jail.

Attacked by a Lion.

ERIE, May 12.—During the street procession of Forepaugh's circus today there was a big scare and stampede because of an attack upon Mr. J. Forepaugh, who was seated in a cage between two lions. One of the savage beasts sprang, roaring at Forepaugh, who met the attack with a sharp pike, which he drove deep into the animal's mouth. A second spring was made, and again the pike saved the man from Death. By dint of pluck and nerve the beast was brought into subjection again. Quite a number of minor accidents incidental to panics occurred. The tableau car, valued at $31,000, was smashed by a freight train to-day.

MARRIED.

On the 26 ult., by Rev. J. Benson Akers, Mr. Mark Mooney, of Snow Shoe, to Miss Bella Norris, of Potter's Mills.

On the 17th ult., by Rev. S. M. Roeder, Mr. Henry M. Deitrick, of Hublersburg, to Miss Amanda M. Hubler, of Spring Mills.

DIED.

On the 15th ult., in Boalsburg, Jacob Fisher aged 76 years, 9 months and 17 days.

On the 11th of April, 1881, in Washington twp., Lycoming county, Mrs. Christianna Bicksler, aged 93 years, and 26 days.

Deceased was the mother of 8 children, 4 of them are living; the youngest, Jonathan Bicksler, is 63 years old. In addition to her children, her decendants number 43 grand-children, 105 great-grand-children, and 13 great-great-grandchildren. Mrs. Bicksler was a consistent member of the Dunkard church for about 40 years.

GEO. P. ROWELL & CO'S SELECT LIST OF LOCAL NEWSPAPERS.

An advertiser who spends upwards of $1,000 a year, and who invested less than $350 of it in this List, writes: "Your Select Local List paid me better last year THAN ALL THE OTHER ADVERTISING I DID."

IT IS NOT A CO-OPERATIVE LIST

IT IS NOT A CHEAP LIST.

IT IS AN HONEST LIST.

The catalogue states exactly what the papers are. When the name of a paper is printed in FULL FACE TYPE it is in every instance the BEST. When printed in CAPITALS it is the ONLY paper in the place. The list gives the population of every town and the circulation of every paper.

The rates charged for advertising are barely one-fifth the publishers' schedule. The price for single States ranges from $2 to $80. The price for one inch one month in the entire list is $125. The regular rates of the papers for the same space and time are $2,880.14. The list includes 852 newspapers of which 187 are issued DAILY and 765 WEEKLY. They are located in 788 different cities and towns, of which 26 are State Capitals, 363 places of over 5,000 population, and 468 County Seats. For copy of List and other information address GEO. P. BEE HIVE

Dry Goods House of Lock Haven for

SPRING AND SUMMER

1881.

Never since the establishment of this great Dry Goods House have we done such an extensive business as we have done this spring. We will in a few days open our fourth immense stock for the Spring and Summer of 1881. The people of Lock Haven, Clinton and Centre counties are showing their great appreciation of the wonderful bargains we are offering in our entire stock. First class goods, only honest dealing, no misrepresentations and low prices always win. This is the motto on which we have built up our enormous trade and will here say that we fully appreciate the liberal patronage of the People in sustaining a first class Dry Goods Store in Lock Haven, which it has been our humble effort for some years to establish.

Our Dress Goods DEPARTMENT

is especially attractive and excels any effort we ever made in Fineness of Stock, Richness of Patterns and in its great variety.

500 YARDS BEAUTIFUL

SUMMER SILKS

at 40, 45 and 50 cts per yard. Beautiful Black Dress Silks at 75 cts a yard. Heavy Gros Grain at 1 25 warranted not to crack or wear glossey. Beautiful Brocades in Black and all Colors. All colors of Satins and Dress Silks. 1000 yards Best Lawns in Remnants from 3 to 15 yds. 9 cts, worth 15 cts.

THE LARGEST STOCK OF

Black and Colored Cashmeres

ever shown in Lock Haven at astonishingly low prices, and all the new Styles of Dress Goods to be found in any city store. 500 yards of the best Pantings for Men and Bous' wear, ever shown in this city. 10000 yds Bleached and Brown Muslins to be sold at wholesale prices. 6000 yds best Calico warranted fast colors at 4½ cts. Great bargains in Table Linen, Tickings and Towlings, &c. 200 Parasol's 25 per cent less than usual price. 1000 Pairs Ladies Lisle Thread and Kid Gloves at prices that will astonish any one who is a judge of their value. An immense stock of Stockings, Laces, Ribbons, &c.

CARPETS, CARPETS, CARPETS.

Never was there shown in Lock Haven such a stock of Body Brussels Tapestry Brussel, 3 ply and Ingrain Carpet, as we show this season and our trade is really immense on them. Beautiful Carpets from 20 cts. a yard upwards.

Come, See and be Convinced that the Bee Hive Store offers decided advantages over every store in Central Pennsylvania in everything in the dry goods line. Everybody welcome to the BEE HIVE, 65 MAIN STREET,

LOCK HAVEN, PA.

AGRICULTURE.

As is well known, there are many plants which thrust their seed vessels into the ground, where the seeds are subsequently matured. The peanut is a good example of a plant which constantly exhibits this phenomenon. Others again develop flowers and seeds entirely underground, while many aquatic plants ripen their seeds under water. The Persians, who are extensive cultivators of melons, have the curious practice of covering this fruit with earth at a certain stage. Such a method is in vogue among Persians who live in the neighborhood of Tiflis, in the Caucasus. Only the choicest and best keeping variety, the true Dutma, is grown. It is a long, smooth kind, which attains a weight of fifteen to twenty pounds, and will keep till Christmas. The deeply tilled ground is thrown up into beds a foot wide in spring, and the seeds sown in a drill along the center. Finally, the plants are left at a great distance apart, and irrigation is effected through the channels between the beds so that no water touches the plants. The fruit sets in June, and only one or two are left on each shoot. When the fruit has attained the size of a man's fist the earth is hollowed out, and the shoot (with the exception of the tip), together with its fruit, is buried therein to a depth of one to one and a half inches, where it remains until the fruit is almost ripe. Considerable practical experience is necessary in order to be able to determine the exact moment when the melons should be unearthed. When the cultivator thinks that the time has arrived, he withdraws the shoot and its fruit from the ground. This is done toward evening, and the fruit is left on the surface of the ground, attached to the shoot, and exposed to the dew of one night; but care is taken to cut the fruit the next morning before the sun can reach it. It is then hung in a cool, dark, dry place until ready for eating.

There are several prominent errors in making butter which are quite common, easily pointed out and in the main easily remedied. The greatest obstacle in the way of reform is to get the necessary instructions before those who commit the errors; to get their attention, win their confidence by showing them that the remedy is less laborious and the grand result a larger and better product, consequently a much better price is obtained for the surplus than is possible under the erroneous method in butter milking. The errors of butter making are: 1st. Uncleanliness. 2d Too much acid in the cream. 3d. Casein or buttermilk in a decomposed state. 4th. Too much friction in churning and working the butter. Foul milking stables, impure water, odors from various sources, known and unknown, are errors vital in their consequences, and not generally thought of as of any importance. Good sweet milk contains one fourth more of sugar than it does of butter: this sugar turns to acid, and if this acid is too much developed before churning, the coveted aroma of good butter is lost.

There are many gluttonous horses which swallow down their oats too fast. Some horses will dispose of four quarts of oats at a few mouthfuls, which of course are not masticated and consequently do the horse but very little good. Such horses are generally poor in flesh. This is a habit of which the horse can soon be broken, and learn to eat his grain slowly. If the manger extends across the whole width of the stall, put in a partition dividing off about one-fourth of it, into which place a number of smooth cobble-stones; all the better if a piece of rock salt is added. Next put in the oats, which mix well with the cobble-stones; the oats slowly, which he will do thoroughly, and at the same time as thoroughly masticate them.

Cabbage.—Chop fine all the soft heads of cabbage that are unsaleable and give your hens a treat. Fowls need green food in the winter as well as summer. Turnip and potato parings will be eaten readily if cut fine.

Feeding.—Poor and scant feed make lean cattle, poor manure and short crops.

Fattening Sheep.—Perhaps the best feed for this purpose is bran, oats and corn in equal weights,

Artificial Indigo.—Mr. Adolph Baeyer, of Munich, has discovered that by the action of sulphuric acid upon orthonitrophenylpropiolic acid a new product may be obtained which is capable of being converted into new coloring matters, or a dyestuff, which he calls artificial indigo. The author says: "I take orthonitrophenylpropiolic acid, and in the cold I mix the said acid with sulphuracid—say, for instance, with from about ten to twenty parts, by weight, of sulphuric acid of about 1.84 specific gravity to every one part, by weight of orthonitrophenylpropiolic acid employed. In effecting the said mixture care is to be taken to avoid a considerable rise of temperature, say, about 20 deg. Centigrade. The mixture thus obtained quickly assumes a bright yellow or orange color, and the reaction is allowed to proceed in the cold until a sample of the mixture, upon being tested for the presence of orthonitrophenylpropiolic acid by means of glucose and alkalies, no longer contains any appreciable quantity of the said acid. The sulphuric acid mixture thus produced is then submitted to the action of suitable reducing or deoxidizing agents in order to effect the conversion into artificial indigo. "In practice I have found a number of substances belonging to various classes of chemical compounds which act as deoxidizing agents upon the above-mentioned new project, and I may specially mentioned ferrous sulphate (green vitriol, copperas.) As an example of the manner in which I prefer to conduct the aforesaid operation, I take the orange-colored mixture resulting from the treatment of one part, by weight of orthonitrophenylpropiolic acid with about from ten to twenty parts sulphuric acid as above described, and I mix the same with a solution containing about five parts, by weight, of ferrous sulphate. The mixture is then allowed to stand at the ordinary temperature, until the blue color, which it quickly assumes, is fully developed, and the dyestuff or coloring matter thus produced may be separated out of the mass by diluting the result of the operation with water, by which it is new dye tuff is precipitated, and may be filtered and washed. The dyestuff is then ready for use. The characteristic of my new dyestuff or coloring matter, prepared according to my above-described process, are the following: The dyestuff or coloring matter resembles in appearance vegetable indigo, and it can be used in dyeing in a manner similar to it; but it is in a great part soluble in analine at an ordinary temperature, and also in an aqueous solution of sulphurous acid."

DOMESTIC.

A Set of table napkins with tray cover, etc., are made really elegant by having a small center piece adorned with a monogram or initial in the center, and a few sprays of foliage surrounding it, with a little border dividing it from the remaining portion of the article. Pour into a saucer a quantity of good indelible ink, and having cut the monogram, or name, from paper, spread out the article upon a table, or board, and fasten each corner of the paper with needles or pins, pressed through into the wood, using care that each part rests closely down upon the linen; then place around it sprays of ferns and a few rose leaves (parts of a spray); then, upon the outer edge, some grasses and ferns (those which have been dried and pressed will answer) all secured with small needles, or pins, placed perpendicularly; arrange, also a narrow border, by cutting paper in tiny scallops, with small holes cut at regular distances. After spattering the entire surface, evenly and uniformly, remove one part of the rose leaves; also, a few of the finer parts upon the outer edge, and carefully cast another spray over the surface; after allowing the previous one to dry off, remove another section from the sprays of leaves, and again "spatter;" then remove the border, spray lightly, and when dry lift the monogram, which will, of course, appear perfectly white.

Tomato Soup.—Take eight good sized tomatoes or half a can of tomatoes—the solid portion. Cut them up, and put them to boil with two quarts of soup stock and bouquet of herbs. When well cooked, thicken with a little flour smoothed and dissolved in a little cold water. Then strain all through a sieve, repeat a little, and add butter, salt and pepper to taste. Place in a saucepan one carrot, one white turnip, and one onion, all sliced and fried brown in butter, and a quarter of a pound of ham; when the moisture is evaporated add two tablespoonfuls of flour and brown with the vegetables; add three pints of good beef broth, one can of tomatoes, a few bay leaves, a pinch of ground cloves, a stalk of celery, a little grated nutmeg; boil till the vegetables are done, and pass forcibly through a sieve; place on fire; bring to a boil and skim; served with plain boiled rice or small squares of bread, fried brown in butter.

By adopting an absolutely non stimulating and chiefly vegetable diet, combined with active exercise in the open air, the most dyspeptic glutton can cure himself in the course of a single season, and by the same means every boarding school might become a dietetic sanitarium. The following list of hygienic menus is arranged in the order of their digestibility and wholesomeness:

Milk, bread and fruit. Eggs (raw or whipped), bread and honey. Boiled eggs, bread, and apples (ancient Rome.) Bread and butter, rice pudding, with sugar and fresh milk. Corn bread, or roasted chestnuts, butter, honey, and grapes (the usual diet of the long lived Corsican mountaineers.) Fish, butter, oatmeal porridge, and fresh milk (Danish Islands.) Pancakes, honey or new molasses, poached eggs, boiled milk and bread pudding. Vegetable soups, baked beans, potatoes (baked or smashed), butter, biscuits and apple dumplings.

Corn Silks as a Remedy.—Who would have thought that the silk on an ear of green corn was a powerful and efficient remedy for dropsy, for bladder troubles and for the diseases of the kidneys? In the Louisville Medical News we find an account of the medical properties of corn-silk and the cures that have been effected by its use. The way to use it is to take two double-handfuls of fresh corn-silk and boil in two gallons of water until but a gallon remains. Add sugar to make a syrup. Drink a tumblerful of this thrice daily, and it will relieve dropsy by increasing the flow of the urine most enormously. Other diseases of the bladder and kidneys are benefited by the remedy, which is prompt, efficient, and grateful to the stomach. The treatment can be continued for months without danger or inconvenience.

Facts About Flour.—Flour is particularly sensitive to atmospheric influences, hence it should never be stored in a room with sour liquids, or where onions or fish are kept, nor any other article that taints the air of the room in which it is stored. Any smell perceptible to the sense will be absorbed by flour. Avoid damp cellars, or lofts where a free circulation of air cannot be obtained. Keep in a cool dry, airy room, and not exposed to a freezing temperature, nor to intense natural or artifical heat for any length of time above 70 to 72 degrees Fahrenheit. It should not come in contact with grain or other substances which are liable to heat. Flour should be sifted and the particles thoroughly disintegrated and then warmed before baking.

Chocolate Pudding.—Scald together a quart of milk and three ounces of grated chocolate. Set it away until cold and then add the beaten yolks of five eggs and one cup of sugar. Bake about twenty-five minutes. Beat the whites of the eggs to a stiff froth, spread over the top of the pudding and crown them slightly in the oven. This pudding should be served very cold.

What an Earthquake Did.—A curious result seems to have followed a recent earthquake at Bucharest. The soil of Bucharest is a rich, black, porous vegetable mould, very springy under pressure, and carriages passing in a street cause a strong vibration in the adjacent houses. The Grand hotel boulevard, however, was an exception to the general rule, and in the rooms facing the principal street, on which there is a heavy traffic, no sensible effect was felt from passing vehicles. During the recent earthquake the windows and crockery and less massive constructed buildings rattled very sensibly, whereas there was no audible sound in the hotel. Since the earthquake shock, however, this state of things has changed entirely, and every vehicle passing the hotel causes a vibration in the whole building. The singular part of this change is that the effect produced by the vehicle is the same as that accompanying the earthquake. It is not a jar as previously produced in other buildings, but a sawing motion similar to that felt in the late shock. This movement is so great as to cause pictures to sway backward and forward on the walls. However, there is not a crack in it. Hence, it is thought this change in the solidity of the structure appears to be due to some effect produced in the earth underneath the building by the shock of earthquake.

WIT AND HUMOR.

A Detroit surgeon, whose reputation is first class, was seated in his office the other day when in walked a stranger who was followed by a dog. Without any fooling around he began:

"Doctor, I have the dyspepsia."

"Yes, sir."

"Had it twenty-six years,"

"Yes, sir."

"You can't cure it?"

"No, sir."

"But you can make an exchange of stomachs between me and my dog."

"I believe it could be done and both live."

"Will you guarantee that I won't have a hankering for old bones if I trade stomachs."

"No' sir."

"Will I want to chase cats?"

"Verly likely."

"And snap at tramps?"

"Quite probable."

"Doctor, this is business."

"Yes, sir."

"And the exchange of stomachs is declared off."

"Very well."

"And I bid you good day."

"Good day, sir!"

And the man whistled to his dog and walked out, without looking to the right or left.

The latest man who has been made happy through the use of this valuable liniment is Mr. James A Conlan, Librarian of the Union Catholic Library of this city. The following is Mr. Conlan's indorsement:

Union Catholic Library Assoc'n
204 Dearborn Street.
Chicago, Sept 16, 1880,

I wish to add my testimony as to the merits of St. Jacob's Oil as a cure for rheumatism. One bottle has cured me of this troublesome disease, which gave me a great deal of bother for a long time; but thanks to the remedy I am cured. This statement is unsolicited by any one in its interest.

James A. Conlan, Librarian.

A man with a black eye called upon a lawyer and said:

"I have been knocked down."

"Good case—good case, if you have any witnesses," was the smiling reply.

"I've got this black eye and an old woman for witnesses."

"Correct—correct. I'll take the evidence and see you through."

"For how much?"

"Well, the whole thing won't cost over six or or eight dollars."

"And what'll I get?"

"Justice, of course."

"And what'll the other man get?"

"Oh, he'll probably be fined $5.

"Say, you go to thunder!" suddenly remarked the plaintiff. "You must think I'm a fool to pay out $6 or $8 and have the bother of a law-suit, when three different men are just aching to lick the feller in rotation at only $1 a head! I'm not pourty looking, but I'm no cundurango."

As a citizen was feeling his way up the street one dark night, he suddenly made out the form of a man only a few feet away. After a halt and an embarrassing silence he called out:

"Say, you!"

"Yes."

"Are you an honest man?"

"Yes, are you?"

"Yes."

"Have you got any money?"

"Not a red. How is it with you?"

"I'm also dead broke. How are you armed?"

"With a club. How are you!"

"I've got a club too. What a lucky thing it is that we spoke to each other? If either of us had been a robber we might have killed our man and got a cent."

Member of this Department relieved of Rheumatism by the use of St. Jacob's Oil, says Geo. W. Walling, Esq., Superintendent Police New York, in one of our exchanges.

Back parlor anatomy: In Oshkosh lived a fair maiden who had read with some alarm of the death of an Indiana woman from tight-lacing, the immediate cause being an affection of the epigastrium. When her lover called that evening and the light had been turned down as usual she said to him frankly:

"Now, I want you to be careful, Eugene; you're worse than a corset."

Eugene faltered out: "Oh, Mary, why this coldness?"

"It isn't coldness at all," she replied; "but you hug so tight you knock my epigastrium all out of kilter.

Lights and shadows of portrait painting: Aunty—"And now, how many sittings shall you require of my niece, Mr. Sparks?" Our Artist (a model but most inflammable youth)—"Oh, not more than thirty or forty, or perhaps fifty—we will say six, if you like, or seventy—at all events, eighty or ninety at the utmost, or—" Aunty—"Good Heavens! why, you painted me in four!" Our Artist—"No!—did I, really, though? Ah, but I can see at a glance that your niece's expression will be particularly difficult to catch, you know!"

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound strengthens the stomach and kidneys and aids digestion.

"How do you like the rooms?" asked Mrs. Dotonart, who was showing the Smithingtons over the new house. "Oh, they are perfectly lovely!" exclaimed Mrs. Smithington, "and they are furnished so sweetly! What exquisite plaques those are aren't they, Smithington?" "What, them dishes on the wall? Yes, they are pretty enough, but why in thunder didn't they have some closets in the house to put the crockery in?" Mrs. Dotonart goes into mild hysterics, and Mrs. Smithington gives Smithington such a look.

Agricultural item: During the Mardi-Gras celebration the Galveston saloons did a rushing business. Gilhooly said to a barkeeper:

"I suppose you all made hay while the sun shone?"

"We didn't make hay, but we sold a good deal of rye," replied the barkeeper.

An editor's wife discovered her husband, the other evening, in the act of hugging—"going to press"—the servant girl. The first editoral in his next day's issue opened with, "We are living in perilous times." That told the whole story.

To All Our Friends.

Having had numberless inquiries for advertising cards from ladies in all parts of the country who are interested in the prevailing fashion of making "Card Collections," we are having printed for them a set of seven beautiful cards, each in six colors and on a gold background, in the very highest degree of art, illustrating Shakspeare's "Seven Ages of Man." We have spared no expense in these cards—they are simply little art gems. Our only aim has been to publish the finest cards yet shown. Applications for them have come in so rapidly that nearly the whole edition is engaged before the receipt by us of the cards from the artist. We have therefore been obliged to adopt the following plan for the distribution of the remainder: No more of the gilt Shakspeare cards, seven in the series, will be sent excepting upon the receipt of a statement from a grocer that the person applying for the cards has bought of him on that day at least seven bars of Dobbins' Electric Soap, with price paid for same. All applying in this manner will receive the full set of seven cards gratis by mail. This will insure us that our friends and patrons get their share of these beautiful designs, although it in no manner repays us for the cost of the cards. Your grocer has the soap or will get it, and the purchase by you of seven bars of it at one time will secure for you gratis seven really beautiful cards. The soap improves with age, and is an article of necessity in your house every week. Therefore you are not asked to buy a useless article, but one that you must have anyway. Please send us your application at once, and tell your lady friends making "Card Collections," to do the same. Grocers do not have the cards to deliver. Buy the soap of them, send us their bill, and we will mail you the cards free. Yours respectfully, I. L. Cragin & Co., 116 South 4th Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

P. S.—Ladies not wishing to buy soap can get the cards by remitting cost price, 25 cents

"I never did see such a wind and storm," said a man in a coffee-room.

"And, pray, sir," inquired a would-be wit, "since you saw the wind and storm, what might the color be?"

"The wind blew and the storm rose," was the quiet rejoinder.

Not a Beverage.

"They are not a beverage, but a medicine, with curative properties of the highest degree, containing no poor whiskey or poisonous drugs. They do not tear down an already debilitated system, but build it up. One bottle contains more hops, that is, more real hop strength, than a barrel of ordinary beer. Every druggist in Rochester sells them, and the physicians prescribe them."—Evening Express on Hop Bitters.

Dark.—One cup brown sugar, half cup molasses, one cup of butter, one-fourth cup sour milk, half teaspoon of soda, yolks of four eggs, flour to thicken, and spices to suit.

Pimples and Humors on the Face.—In this condition of the skin, the Vegetine is the great remedy, as it acts directly upon the cause. It cleanses and purifies the blood, thereby causing humors of all kinds to disappear.

Plain Cake.—One cup sugar half cup sweet milk, one and one-half cup flour, one egg one teaspoon baking powder, butter size of an egg.

Some people suffer for years from weak kidneys and torpid bowels and liver. If you know such a person tell them that Kidney-Wort is a certain cure.

Snow Cake Sponge.—One cup each sugar and flour, two tablespoons milk, one teaspoonful baking powder, whites of ten eggs.

Mr. H. R. Stevens:
Dear Sir—I will most cheerfully add my testimony to the great number you have already received in favor of your great and good medicine, Vegetine, for I do not think enough can be said in its praise; for I was troubled over 30 years with that dreadful disease, Catarrh, and had such bad coughing spells that it would seem as though I never could breathe any more, and Vegetine has cured me; and I do feel to thank God all the time that there is so good a medicine as Vegetine; and I also think it one of the best medicines for coughs and weak, sinking feelings at the stomach, and advise everybody to take the Vegetine, for I can assure them it is one of the best medicines that ever was.

The ruins of a once magnificent bathing establishment, covered over by more than thirty feet of ashes and lava, have been discovered by Prof. Guiseppe Novi, near Herculaneum. From all descriptions they appear to surpass anything of a simular nature hitherto excavated, either at Herculaneum or at Pompeii. The sculptured fountains and tanks are of oriental granite, the floors are of colored glass mosaic, and the walls of the building are richly adorned with paintings and stucco work.

Profitable Patients.

The Photographic News describes a detective camera, the invention of Mr. Bolas. It is like a shoeblack's block, and may be slung over the sloulder with a strap. It carries gelatine plates already in position and lens that is alway in focus for any distance from twenty to thirty feet. It may be dropped in the street any time the owner sees a group he wants a picture of. When it touches the ground a bulb is squeezed and the exposure is made.

EIGHT REASONS

WHY WE NEVER SELL POND'S EXTRACT IN BULK, BUT ADHERE TO THE RULE OF SELLING ONLY IN OUR OWN BOTTLES, INCLOSED IN BUFF WRAPPER, ON WHICH IS PRINTED OUR LANDSCAPE TRADE-MARK.

1.—It insures the purchaser obtaining the genuine article.

2.—It protects the consumer in buying Pond's Extract not weakened with water, which we found was done a few years ago, when we were induced to furnish dealers with the genuine article in bulk.

3.—It protects the consumer from unscrupulous parties selling crude, cheap decoctions to him as Pond's Extract, for any person can tell the genuine from the bottle and wrapper.

4.—It protects the consumer, for it is not safe to use any other article according to the directions given in our book, which surrounds each bottle of Pond's Extract.

5.—It protects the consumer, for it is not agreeable to be deceived and perhaps injured by using other articles under the directions for Pond's Extract.

6.—No other article, manufacture or imitation has the effect claimed for and always produced by Pond's Extract.

7.—It is prejudicial to the reputation of Pond's Extract to have people use a counterfeit believing it to be the genuine, for they will surely be disappointed, if not injured by its effects.

8.—Justice to one of the best medicines in the world, and the hundreds of thousands using it, demand every precaution against having weak and injurious preparations palmed off as the genuine. The only way this can be accomplished is to sell the GENUINE, put up in a uniform manner—in our own bottles, complete with buff wrappers, trade-mark, &c.

REMEMBER—The Genuine Pond's Extract is cheap, because it is strong, uniform and reliable. Our book of directions explains when it can be diluted with water and when to be used full strength.

REMEMBER—That all other preparations, if colorless, are mere decoctions, bitters, or produced simply to obtain the odor and without the scientific or practical knowledge of the matter which many years of labor has given us.

REMEMBER, OR KNOW NOW—That all preparations purporting to be superior to Pond's Extract because they have color, are colored simply because they have crude, and to unprofessional people using them, perhaps dangerous matter in them, and should never be used except under the advice and prescription of a Physician.

REMEMBER AND KNOW—That our very expensive machinery is the result of 30 years of experience (the most of which was entirely given to this work), and constant attention to the production of all forms of Hamame is, and that therefore we should know what we assert, that Pond's Extract is the best, purest, and contains more virtues of the shrub than any other production yet made.

Our New History and Uses of Pond's Extract and other preparations sent free.

Ladies—Read pages 13, 18 21 and 26 in our book, which is found around each bottle, and will be sent free on application.

"For ORGANISTS!"

Organ Gems. ($2 50.) By F. L. Davenport.
Organ Selections. ($1 50.) By Peters.
Batiste's Organ Voluntaries. $3.50.
Batiste's Last Compositions. $2.50.
Organist's Reliance. (10 Nos., each $1.25. Complete $6.) By Eugene Thayer.
Zundel's Original Organ Compositions. ($1.25.)
In these six well made books will be found a very large number of voluntaries, some classical, some new and light, but all good. Organists will be glad to use the longer ones intact, and to adopt the shorter compositions as themes from which to vary.

Billee Taylor, price reduced to 50 cents.
Olivette, price reduced to 50 cents.

Johnson's New Method for Harmony.

($1.00.) By A. N. JOHNSON. "The best book in the world" (for its object), was the commendation bestowed by an enthusiastic pupil on a former book by the same author. However that may be, this is his newest treatise, and can hardly be excelled for plainess of explanation, ease and thoroughness. It does not attempt counterpoint, or any of the higher problems of composition; but confines itself to those things that every organist, every good player, and every composer or "the people's music," ought to know.

Report of the Judges on Incubators 1879 & 1880.

At the 26th Annual Exhibition of the Pennsylvania State Agricultural Society, held at Philadelphia, September 8th to 20th, 1879.

"We consider MEYER'S THE BEST INCUBATOR we have ever seen here or elsewhere, and Mr. Rodgers, of our committee has seen most of them. We cheerfully award THE SILVER MEDAL." (Highest Prize.)

At the 27th Annual Exhibition of the Pennsylvania State Agricultural Society, held at the Permanent Exhibition, Philadelphia, September 6th to 25th, 1880.

"We fully concur with the report of the Judges of the preceeding year, and declare the INCUBATORS of the PERFECTION INCUBATOR CO. (Meyer's Patent) to be the best of all known INCUBATORS, the chickens hatched by this process being stronger and healthier than those hatched under the hen. We therefore cheerfully award them the SILVER MEDAL." (Highest Prize.)
